

Comprehensive Immigration Reform Now

Americans Want and Deserve Economic and National Security

“You can’t secure our border with thousands trying to sneak in, and therefore, this country needs a temporary worker program that will allow foreign workers to enter our country legally on a temporary basis to meet the needs of our economy and take the pressure off our border.”

-President Bush
May, 2006

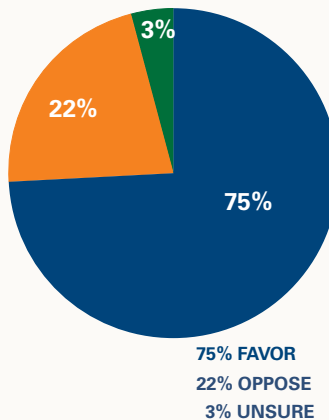

Sources: Graph based on January 2006 Time magazine poll.

According to the Republican National Committee (RNC), “candidates who talk about comprehensive reform are more successful than those who focus only on border security.”

Also, approximately 71% of “voters want comprehensive reform, including a temporary worker program and legal status, not inaction. . . . Support for comprehensive reform is even higher among GOP base voters—80% of conservatives.”

Sources: Graph based on May 2006 Voter/Consumer Research poll conducted for the Republican National Committee. Quotes from RNC Memorandum by Matthew Dowd, RNC Senior Advisor, to RNC Members, May 26, 2006.

Approximately 75% of likely voters, 38% intensely, support Comprehensive Immigration Reform legislation that would:

- Include a requirement for undocumented workers living in the United States to come forward and register as guest workers; and,
- Provide these newly registered workers with a multi-year process for legal residency and eventual citizenship.

A similar poll in October 2005 found support among 78% of Republicans.

Sources: Graph based on March 2005 Tarrance/Lake-Snell poll.